

A Tale of Two Cities

Tellsons Bank had an office in Paris. Their employee, Jarvis Lorry, takes Lucie Manette to Paris and brings her father to England; and, on the return, they meet Charles Darney, son of the Marquis St Evremonde. Darney is prosecuted in London as a spy. He is freed after his lawyer draws attention to the likeness between him and his clerk, Sidney Carton. Darney goes to Paris, but the revolutionaries sentence him to be guillotined. Lorry and Carton travel to Paris. Carton substitutes himself for Darney and goes to the guillotine, while Lorry and Darney escape to England, where Darney marries Lucie.
