

BMW 7 Series

Prejudice should not blind you to virtue. Some people might still not have a Ford on principle, despite the fact that they make very good cars. The same principle applies to BMWs. Another brother-in-law had a pre-Bangle 7, and I travelled quite a lot of miles in it. Basically it is a good big family car, like, say, the Austin 110 or Humber Snipe used to be. Big, solid, comfortable, reliable, respectable. Bigness and comfort, even now, tend to go together. One difference is that the BMW goes very well and is a pleasure to drive. Another is the image thing.
