

Peugeot 203

My son's first car was a 203 and he chose it rather than a Polo from my firm's office fleet. Partners could buy low mileage models cheaply eg when their children reached 17. It was a handy little car and served its purpose as a learner's car and then a reliable student's runabout. As a normal usable car for everyday use I rated it pretty low. I had never before experienced fresh air vents that pump hot air into your face when the heater is on. To my mind you want warm air on your feet but fresh air to breathe.

© Roderick Ramage 28.xii.2003