

Rover 3-Litre (P5)

My uncle's cars developed with his progress towards senior partnership, and, part way through my articles, he bought a P5, 3 litres, auto, pas and exquisite interior detailing. Occasionally I was sent out in it on my own. It was a bit soft after the Pathfinder and gave me quite a fright, when a winding Lancashire hill road was a bit narrower and the bends a bit sharper than I thought. It took yards of steering wheel to rescue it but nothing was hurt, apart from my pride. You just had to remember what kind of driving it was made for.

© Roderick Ramage 6.i.2003