

Triumph Herald

My sister had a friend who wanted a new car. To my mind the obvious choice was a Morris Minor. To hers it was a Triumph Herald. "But it's £100 more than the Morris." I don't think that that mattered. Perhaps Daddy was paying. "But it suffers swing axle oversteer." I don't think she heard that, or if she did whether she cared. "But ... ." Well, to tell the truth I liked the ideal of a separate chassis and a range of bodies and remembered reading that that apprentices drove a chassis to the launch and then assembled the car.

© Roderick Ramage 2.i.2004